

Did you know we help analyze changes in the atmosphere from space?

The Atmospheric Chemistry Experiment (ACE) is the main payload of the Canadian science satellite, SciSat. ACE consists of a suite of instruments to help understand the relationship between atmospheric chemistry and climate change. ABB Measurement & Analytics was asked to supply the primary analytical instruments. The success of this project has led to ABB being asked to supply other research satellite projects around the world.

Learn more:

